County zoning code proposed

Sure to raise concerns BY MARY G. SEILEY A proposed zoning code for Hancock County -- some four

A proposed zoning code for Hancock County -- some four years in the making -- has been given to members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors for review.

The proposal no doubt will be controversial, since the unincorporated area never has had zoning regulations. The total absense of zoning, however, is exactly why the county needs to impose it, supporters of the proposal say.

Development-minded investors are searching for zoning-free areas, so they may develop as they please, says Planning Commission Chairman John Scafide. Board of Supervisors President Mike Ladner said since much of Hancock County can't be developed — it's either designated as wetlands or lies within the NASA restricted zone—an extraordinary level of caution needs to be taken with how the county growth occurs.

"It's an absolute necessity that we have zoning in the county," said Ladner. "If we're going to grow and use our land to the very best, we're going to have to have zoning."

Under the proposed code.

Under the proposed code, most of the county would be designated "agricultural," notes Scafide, leaving the rural area property owners freedom to continue farming operations but protecting them from potential intrusions such as industrial plants and major commercial operations.

Increasingly, he said, people are coming to realize the dangers of remaining unzoned: "We're open to all types of development."

Ladner said the proposal remains in a highly preliminary status at this point. Supervisors will want to go through the details with members of the Planning Commission, he said. After that, Scafide said the commission will set a series of meetings and hearings, to let the public offer suggestions for revisions.

A final draft of the proposal should be ready by the end of the year, Scafide said.

Along with the proposed code, planners have drafted a set maps depicting proposed

Hancock receives $102,000 Camp program grant

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Good news was heard for the Hancock County School District's proposed Summer Camp in partnership with the YMCA.

Superintendent Myrna Bourgeois received word this past week that a $102,000 grant was received to provide 165
scholarships for a Summer
Camp program at Gulfview, Hancock North Central and Charles B. Murphy for a summer program to begin on June 5 through the end of summer.

The summer camps will run from 6 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and will also provide free breakfast and lunch as part of the scholarships.

The Summer Camp will be for students of District ages five through 13, (or up to age 18 for mentally or physically handicapped) whose parents meet certain criteria.

Registrations will be Tuesday, May 30, 2:30 to 6 p.m. and on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 31, June 1 and 2, noon until 6 p.m. at each elementary school.

Parents need to bring income tax returns with W-2 forms, letter from employer on letterhead, or letter notarized verifying employment and income.

Parents who are selfemployed need estimated quarterly tax reports, or a parent just starting a business needs some documentation of the business.

Some students will receive full scholarships, others reductions, depending on a family income. Parents of students who do not qualify, may have their children attend by paying a minimal fee.

Activities of the Summer Camp program will be handled by the YMCA and employees of

Trash piling up

Some Waveland residents are continuing to use Waveland Cemetery as a dumping ground. The trash is piling up on two sides of the cemetery, creating an eyesore in an otherwise tranquil setting. Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell reported a recent arrest for illegal dumping at the remetery. Varnell said his department is continuing to monitor the illegal dumping. Despite two evenings of financial maneuverings that resulted in cutting the operating budget for all five district schools, the end result is a projected deficit of $105,122. That includes transferring $212,000. Casino Magic income to the general fund. Traditionally, casino revenue has been earmarked for capital improvements.

However, the numbers are not as dank as they appear since the beginning fund balance, which district Busi-

"We are trying to live within our means," Cuevas said. He added that although the deficit will not be a problem this year, operating on continued deficits will "deplete" funds in future years.

The board took its first peek at the projected budget on Monday, where members first learned of the looming deficit. The initial budget showed a deficit of $362,788, based on an operating income of $7.13 mil-household items.

The bulk of the expense is teacher salaries and benefits, which account for $6.15 million. Cuevas said "65-70 percent" of the deficit is unfunded mandates from the state and personnel.

Teachers are due to receive a slight salary increase from the state in the fall. But there will be no increase from the district. Superintendent Paul Tisdale said. The last teacher raise from the district was in 1993.

The state pays for the major portion of teacher salaries. although the district picks up the entire tab for 32 teachers.

Because of state teacher requirements, none of the $6.15 million could be trimmed, Cuevas said. Consequently, other areas fell victim to the budget

"State law forbids cutting certified personnel," Cuevas said. "What's left? You can only cut so much.'

Board members mandated a 10 percent cut to Waveland and North Bay Elementary schools, Bay Middle School and Bay High School The vocational school will also operate with 10 percent fewer funds.

Additionally, some programs may also be slashed by three percent, including special education. Other casualties include travel, repair and maintenance, and staff development.

"We are looking at our revenues coming in and our expenditures going out," Tisdale said. "We want to be aware of more going out so we don't dig ourselves into a hole."

The district is scheduled to receive approximately $2.7 in its share of ad valorem taxes. However, the exact figure will not be calculated by the assessor's office until the fall.

The district will also receive over $4 million from the state. Again, those figures are speculative until final enrollment at all of the schools is determined. Tisdale admitted potential for budget fluctuations.
"We know we will have var-iances," he said. "All we are going on is projections. We want to be prudent to make decisions.

"The teacher salaries we must pay may change depending on enrollment. The state funding may vary. It is a budget

The district faces a large and unexpected expense thanks to a state mandate requiring paid insurance for school food workers. That cost comes to $44,256.

Nearly $400,000 of the nearly $700,000 of casino money will be spent on capital projects. The biggest chunk is $220,000 for a new track at Bay High School. Other highlights include $85,000 for a new gym floor at the high school, $20,000 above and beyond the state supplement for textbooks, $40,000 for computers, $15,000 for a universal keying system at the high and middle schools, and $2,000 in ACT testing software.

Board member Richard Flowers said the "textbooks and curriculum must come first."

We must find money for those two before we find money for any other extracurricular activities," he said.

The capital expenditures will deplete the casino fund. Board officials said some of the capital projects will not be advertised for bid until the fall, so members will have a more accurate picture of casino income.

The board will give final approval to the budget at its regularly scheduled meeting on June 12. A public meeting on the budget is scheduled on June 22 at 6:30 p.m. at the school board office.

Every time I mention the one-eyed vehicles I receive numerous comments.

One of my friends told me Thursday I need to tell folks about turn signals and how they are to be used. He said it was a simple operation, bring the arm down for a left turn, or up for a right turn.

This is not the first time someone has commented to me about the lack of motorists using turn signals. It seems there are a certain number of motorists who do not use the signals.

Of course when I learned how to drive, and it was in a 1928 Model A Ford, we used arm signals. Even with my first car, a highly used 1936 Plymouth while in high school, there were no turn signals.

Autos have become more modern today and I guess some just forget to use their turn signals.

It sure makes it easier for other motorists when one does use turn signals.

Monday is Memorial Day and many veteran organizations across the nation will be celebrating with Memorial Day services.

Both the Bay St. Louis and Waveland American Legion Posts will conduct Memorial Day Services.

Bay St. Louis' activities will be at the gravesite of Clement R. Bontemps in St. Mary's Cemetery, Necaise Avenue, at 10 a.m.

John Wilkerson is the Memorial Day program chairman.

This will be followed by a Post Everlasting at the post's Monument on Green Meadow Road.

Waveland's Legion ceremonies will begin at 11 a.m. Monday at the post home on Coleman Avenue.

Guest speaker will be Lt. Col. Gary Lee of the U.S. Air Force, Keesler Air Force Base.

Refreshments will be served following the Memorial Day Services at both Legion Post homes for members and guests.

I am hoping there will be a large attendance at each of the Memorial Day services.

An interesting item appears in the May 15, 1995 American Airlines magazine titled, American Way for Kids. This magazine is placed on the back of seats on American Airlines planes.

The page carries a photo of a youngster, Russell Dennis, then age seven, who tells the story of his grandmother taking he and his fourteen-year-old brother to The Youth School of Music at Gulfside United Methodist Assembly in Waveland.

Mrs. Marian Martin, director at Gulfside, remembers Russell being at Gulfside's Summer 94 Music program, and reports he was a very sharp youngster.

He is from Washington, D.C. and in the article comments about how beautiful the place (Gulfside) is on the Gulf of Mexico which was across the highway at the end of the driveway.

The lad comments on the delicious meals in the dining room and how his group performed in a play called Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat.

He reported a Channel 13 news crew came to see the play and they were given a short spot on the 10 p.m.

The article closed with the youngster reporting they went shopping in downtown Waveland and he bought some basketball cards.

It is great to hear what others thing about the community in which we live.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resident for parking bays in Waveland

To the Editor:

In response to the parking issue on the beach, my comment is, "I, for one; am all for the new parking bays.

This morning, my Mom came over from Slidell, and we went to the beach to walk. I was very upset to see that the place I have parked for years had a no parking sign. We can forget tourism, if the people have no place to park. When the residents moved on the beach, they knew people would be parking and partying on the beach. Little by little all the parking is being eliminated. It seems the influential few want to have control of the laws for their convenience. Thanks.

Reader is happy council member has good hearing

Dear Editor:

I am very glad to read that one of our Bay St. Louis council-men who lives in the downtown area has good hearing. He agreed that the Saturday night music was disturbing to say the least.

I now hope that all the councilmen have good eyesight also and could come to the downtown area on a Sunday morning and help the shop owners clean up the streets and sidewalks.

Broken glass, empty and partially filled beer cans and miscellaneous other mess abounds ofter a "fun" Saturday night.

I continue to hope we will have scheduled cleaning on a regular basis of our quaint downtown area.

Until then, where oh where are the promised trash receptacles?

Disappointedly, Don Hoffman Bay St. Louis

Gulfport resident upset with cemetery conditions

After visiting the Waveland Cemetery, I must say I was terribly shocked with the deplorable condition it is in. Does the City of Waveland have such little respect for the dead? I would appear so, compared to the City of Gulfport's Evergreen Cemetery which is immaculate.

There are many prominent citizens from Waveland who are buried in the City of Waveland cemetery. It's hard to believe that this cemetery is in such despicable shape. It looks as if it is being used as a city dump

Over half of the cemetery is covered with various types of debris and landfill. I can't believe the politicians and city officials of the City of Waveland show no respect for their deceased. I have family members buried there, and it was very disturbing to see such a

I hope that the City of Waveland will give this situation immediate attention.

Respectfully, Tom R. Hayward Gulfport

Close of the Ayres case may well be in sight

The end of the long judicial trail of the Ayres case may well be in sight and implementation of a federally mandated plan to wipe out the last vestiges of segregation in Mississippi's higher education system can

That, after 20 years of litigation, will be a welcomed relief to a great many Mississippians who have viewed the case as a Damocles Sword hanging over the head of higher education in this state. Unless an appeal is filed by the plaintiffs by June 20, the March 7 decree of U.S. District Judge Neal Biggers Jr. will become final and the exhausting litigation over the lawsuit initiated in 1975 by Jake Kyres, father of a black college student, and joined by the U.S. Justice Department, will finally come to an end.

Thereupon, Judge Biggers will implement compliance with the ruling through a threemember monitoring committee, likely appointed by him from names submitted by both the defendant state College Board and the plaintiffs' including five private individuals as well as the U.S. Justice Department.

Key to bringing an end to the 20-year-old litigation next month is what the Justice Department does: whether to appeal the Biggers decision to the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court, and thence to the U.S. Supreme Court, or not to appeal. Still important players in the game, of course, are the private plaintiffs, who are vociferously represented by Oxford attorney Alvin Chambliss, who is obviously not happy about ending the litigation. However, the U.S. Justice Department has been carrying the heaviest load of expenses in the case and picking up most of the tab for the massive cost of expert witnesses and document preparation (113 witnesses who were called and over 100,000 pages of exhibits filed in the 1994 trial).

The inclination of the Justice Department, as far as this column has been able to determine, is not to appeal the case and it is likely that it will not, unless perhaps President Clinton orders it to do so. Former Gov. William Winter, regarded as one of Clinton's closest advisers in Mississippi, said he has not been asked by the President about the Mississippi case. "If he does I will advise him not to pursue an appeal in the case," Winter told this column.

Significantly, Winter was a member of the Southern Education Foundation task force's 18-month study funded by the Ford Foundation to determine removal of racial inequities in Southern university systems. Winter said the task force urged in its final report last week that there should be an end to litigation over achieving desegregation in Southern higher education. Winter said the task force declared that the goal of education should be a racially "seamless fabric" all the way from elementary and secondary all the way through higher education. It stressed that achieving the goal of desegregation and providing quality education would largely depend on good-will of the leadership and legislatures in each state. Particularly, it said that the governor of the state should set the tone for implementing a process for removing racial inequities and providing quality education.

While the Justice Department seems unlikely to appeal the Ayres ruling, Chambliss clearly doesn't want to give up the appeal if he can find the money to keep the old case going. However, he admits that as things now stand, "We don't have the resources." His primary beef right now is over the creation and funding of the three-member monitoring committee which Biggers prescribed to "monitor implementation of the terms and obligations imposed by the decree.

Initially his March 7 decree called for the monitoring committee to be appointed by May 1 with its members agreed to by. e Board and the plaintiffs. If the two sides couldn't agree, he said the court would name the three. Last month Biggers amended his order to extend the appointment of the committee to June 1. William F. Goodman Jr., the College Board's special attorney said he considered it "very unlikely" that the two sides would agree on the three

Chambliss had filed a motion to suspend creation of the monitoring body indefinitely until the judge held a hearing to determine how it would be funded and its functions more clearly defined. However, the Justice Department filed its own motion simply to extend the appointing time to June 1, and that is what Biggers agreed

The 1995 Legislature, Chambliss maintains, reneged on its duty to provide adequate funding independent of the state College Board, to operate the monitoring committee.

In the overall $227.9 million appropriated to the College Board for fiscal '95-'96, the legislature had set aside only $1.26 million "for the Ayres case" and listed the monitoring committee with no specific amount as one of the purposes for the allocation. However, the state College Board had made a special funding request to the Legislature for a total of $35.8 million to begin improving the education programs at the historically black universities and upgrade admission standards as called for in Biggers' decree. In the request the board had proposed $135,000 for the monitoring committee.

Consequently, the Legislature ignored some $34.5 million of the board's request, which included such items as $5.3 million to implement new admissions standards, $5 million each for endowment trust funds at Jackson State and Alcorn State. and $15 million for property acquisition at Jackson State.

Chambliss contends that departing higher education Commissioner W. Ray Cleere had "taken care of himself" by ates. For those of you waking up with a head the size of a Goodyear blimp caused from excessive celebrating, I say "welcome to adulthood.

All right, so you've made it. You have survived 12 years of education, 12 years of school lunches of which you were never able to indentify, and 12 years of blue-haired teachers slamming large rulers on your desk to wake you up.

Suddenly you find yourself in a prone position on your moms couch flipping from channel to channel wondering just what in the heck your gonna do for the rest of your life. Well kids, lucky for you, Uncle Brewer has a few tips to help ease you into the mainstream of life. First of all take a look at your current financial position. If your parents are extremely wealthy and naive, I recommend that you remain on the have some natural talents, the couch eating frosted flakes for job market is wide open. Conthe rest of your life. However, if ma and pa are just hard working middle class folks, pretty much living from payday to pay-that you're probably going to have to seek employment.

Don't be surprised if you find a job that you really hate. Take a look around you, 99 percent of the population hates their job. After all, believe me on this one, I've exhausted every avenue searching for a job that will let me sleep in till the O.J. trial starts, pays big money, all the employees are six foot, blond haired beauties, and allows you to drink Buds and eat crawfish all day. There just are not any out there unless of course you are the dude whose picture appears on this page just to the right of this column.

Once you've found a job, life as you know it will come to a screaching halt. It is a good idea to obtain a dog after being employed. You will need something to kick around after being tortured all day. Hey I'm kidding, do not, I repeat do not kick your dog, you will need him to help you scrounge for food once you are fired.

If you are lucky enough to sider being a Playboy photographer, or playing third base for the Cincinatti Reds. And for heaven's sake do not become a day, I'm afraid to inform you biologist specializing in human

DNA testing. Those dudes have absolutely no life, and they walk around confused and disoreinted as seen in the trial of the century

If all else fails, there is always the military. As long as you have a real diploma, not one you order through a magazine, and a pulse that is detectible, you can be a proud member of the Armed Forces. One word of advice on this. If during boot camp your drill instructor calls your name during mail call, do not answer him by snapping your finger and saying "yo." Trust me, I tried it and it didn't set well with the instructor, although the squadron toilets remained clean for a long time.

All kidding aside, you dudes and dudettes who were smart enough to make it through high school, then you might want to consider attending a college or a university for a few more years of worthwhile torture. Then you can make a significant positive contribution to this world in which we live in. So go for it, make a difference!

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to all you young folks who got to throw them funny little hats with the tassles up in the air. Way to go. Peace.

new district boundaries for residential, agricultural, commercial and industrial property

The technical work was done by the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District for the county Planning Commission.

Under the proposal, the vast majority of the unincorporated area would be designated as a general agricultural district. Permitted land uses in that district include single family dwellings, mobile homes (but not mobile home parks), agriculture, churches, home occupations, piers and ponds for livestock, fish or fowl, fire prevention and aquaculture. Other types of development in that district would require special permission from the Planning Commission, including such operations as beauty shops and mobile home parks, schools, kennels, commercial and industrial uses and multifamily dwellings.

residential) zoning, including property in the northern, eastern and southeastern parts of the county.

Uses permitted in that district include single family dwellings, low rise apartments, two-family units and all uses permitted in more restrictive residential zones.

High rise apartments are included in the "conditional" uses that could be allowed, with approval of the Planning ommission.

The portion of the county immediately adjacent to Bay St. Louis is proposed for low- and medium-density single family zoning. Commercial zoning is suggested along Highway 603, from Stennis Airport Road to Bayou La Croix, and in an area between Bayou Talla and Highway 603.

Commercial zoning also is proposed for a portion of Highway 90, extending westward from Waveland's city limits past Lakeshore Road. Port Bienville, Stennis Inter-Mational Airport and the NASA Test Facility would be zoned for industrial use under the proposal.

The code proposal contains a aside from what kinds of land uses are allowed in various districts.

There are lot size requirements, setback rules and height regulations, for instance, in the proposed code, as well as special requirements for off-street parking.

Existing uses which don't conform to the proposed districts -- commercial activity in a residential zone, for instance -would be "grandfathered" into a legal status, allowing continued operation. But such uses would not be allowed to expand.

The proposal also contains provisions for variances and special exceptions to the rules, under the authority of the Planning Commission. The commission also could allow temporary permits for deviations from permitted land uses.

One section of the proposed code deals extensively with mobile home park regulations. Other provisions concern what kinds of recreational activity may take place on the county's sand beach: from chair and jet ski rentals to umbrella and small boat rentals.

Dockside gaming would be regulated under another section of the proposed code. The Planning Commission would be given approval authority over a number of casino details that have to be spelled out in a masone has been watching the airplanes, but also doing other duties.

Stovall said the security investigators advised they would be providing some grants to secure computerized entry gates and additional security vehicles.

Stovall emphasized his department is and will always be working together to provide all the necessary compliances with all FAA rules and regulations."

Bidding farewell

Our Lady Academy volunteers (L-R) Keyes Stahl, Mary West, Beth Dillenkoffer, Jennifer Trowbridge, Jennifer Myers, Kara Kortman and Lisa Pope say farewell to Lizzie Richardson (center). The OLA students have shared their love and devotion to Richardson, who is autistic, during the summers and school years. All will graduate except Stahl, who is a freshman. Already 20 students have signed up to continue "Project Lizzie," the brainchild of Brother Canisius Schell of St. Stanislaus. Brother Canisius began working with Lizzie in 1988. The girls spent time with Lizzie, 10, three times a week during the school year and throughout the summer. Because of their efforts, Lizzie is now able to play several tunes on the piano. "I don't think there is a school anywhere that has taken on a project of this magnitude. I know that God sent Brother Canisius to us. Because of the love, the caring, and commitment to our daughter, she has been able to reach for the sky," Mrs. Richardson said. Autism is a dysfunction of the brain that causes various degrees of introversion. (Photo by Brother Canisius)

Eligible for funding are: Multi-jurisdictional task forces that integrate federal state and/or local law enforcement agencies and procecutors to enhance interagency coordination and intelligence and facilitate multi-jurisdictional investigations.

- Community crime prevention programs that assist citizens in preventing and controll-.. ing crime.

- Programs designed to provide additional public correctional resources and improve the corrections system, including treatment in prisons and jails, intensive supervision programs and long-range corrections and sentencing tive director.

"It is vital that all levels of government, the community and the private sector work cooperatively in responding to the problem. Effective and efficient use of this grant funding, now in its ninth year, is an important step in that direction."

Information on applying for the grants may be obtained from Joyce Word, drug control/ system improvement program manager, Mississippi Division of Public Safety Planning, Box 23039, Jackson 39225-3039. Her telephone number is 359-7880.

REFLECTIONS

I had three skillets and the oven working, all at the same time yesterday afternoon, as I cooked up in different ways some of the split chicken breasts "on special" which I had brought home from the supermarket earlier in the day. At other times I simply separate the breasts and freeze in packages of one or two or more for later use and cook as needed. Yesterday, however, I was in a cookin' mood, a super-cooking mood, so I stored up several 'stars" of future meals.

In one skillet yesterday, four chicken breasts were cooking in a tomato salsa; in another chicken breasts were simmer-

Chronic fasting

ON LIFE By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"Little boy, have you eaten today?" a missionary asked a child in Haiti recently.

"No. My daddy told me this morning, Today is not your day to eat.

And we talk smugly about fasting during Lent? Unfortunately, far from being an exaggerated exception to an otherwise tolerable condition of hunger, the little boy's plight is the everyday, chronic state of near famine for innumerable Haitian children and their entire families.

On top of their chronic condition of mandatory, complete fasting, the Haitians have the even more serious "penance" of almost constant worry about escaping the savage beatings of the police or the assassin's bit better about ourselves, especially as spiritual beings, when we fast a little during the season of Lent. Our fasting, however, is totally voluntary, and death-dealing war zones of the Middle East. Can we talk some penance among ourselves while we glibly digest the daily news — mostly bad — of the world?

In this reflection, we have not yet arrived at the world's worst section where people and animals die from thirst and hunger in times of drought. Worse still, some of these same African areas are killing fields of feuding, robbing tribes.

What is this personal penance that we pursue during Lent, this wimpy exercise in trying to be tough? When we consider the myriads dying like flies under spear and gun in Somalia or Ruanda, our penance pales almost into a sad

Even our built-in penance of a hard day at the office or elsewhere on the job, a grueling day at home with the kids, or a day of nagging aches and pains for folks getting along in years, somehow falls flat under the glare of comparison.

Putting Lent, Holy Week and penance into perspective, we see that most of us have it easy enough to be spoiled country, the entire populace and look to Bosnia and the better human beings.

Take It to Heart

Low-Salt Cooking Is Healthy and Delicious

More than 60 million Americans suffer from high blood pressure and are at risk of having a heart attack or stroke. While there is no cure for hypertension and the cause of 90 percent of all high blood pressure is unknown, the American Heart Association emphasizes that there is a relationship between salt and hypertension.

Too much sodium causes the body to retain water, thereby putting an extra burden on the heart, and the average American eats 10 times more sodium than is needed for good health. For many people, following a low-sodium diet can adequately control high blood pressure. This diet even can benefit those who don't have hypertension.

In time for National High Blood Pressure Education Month this month, the AHA has released the "American Heart Association Low-Salt Cookbook" (Times Books), by Drs. Low-Salt Rodman D. Starke and Mary Winston. Designed to help readers lower their blood pressure with a low-sodium diet, the book features more than 175 recipes, two diet programs, and shopping and eating-out tips. It also explains how to substitute ingredients in favorite recipes to make them more healthful, where to look for and how to avoid the many hidden sources of sodium in foods, and where to write for additional information about high blood pressure and related problems. While the recipes are low in sodium, they also are low in fat and cholesterol, helping people to lose weight and lower their cholesterol level. However, no one needs to worry. All of the recipes emphasize the use of herbs and spices, as well as special cooking techniques, to maximize taste. Changing cooking habits is difficult, but these flavorful, healthful recipes show that change can be delicious.

time in the garden or on the beach or wherever the whim takes me, I'll have several "main items," stashed away in the freezer, and will need only rice or pasts or potatoes and fresh vegetables for a meal. You might want to try my:

SALSA CHICKEN 4 skinless split chicken

1 jar mild tomato salsa (16 oz.) or make your own 1/2 tsp. oregano 1/2 tsp. garlic powder

In a medium skillet, combine the salsa, oregano and garlic powder. Add the chicken breasts and simmer, covered, over medium heat for 20 to 30 minutes or until chicken is cooked, stirring occasionally. (4 servings) Note: You may use the drumsticks and thighs in this recipe, as well as breast quarters; just allow a little more cooking time. I like at times to add pineapple chunks or slices to this dish, for I enjoy contracts in tastes and textures. I suppose that's why I like this next recipe so much, from Old Mexico. Mexican food, of course, is not all fiery. Mexican cooks are known for their delicate desserts, and chocolate in all forms is a favorite. Fruits are also favorites, and used often in cooking. I usually use a cut-up fryer for this dish, substituted the split breasts yesterday because I had such a quantity on hand. Here's:

CHICKEN IN ORANGE JUICE AND PINEAPPLE

First, soak 1/2 cup of raisins in 1 cup of orange juice for 2 to 3 hours beforehand to plump them. Then, dredge the chicken, cut into serving pieces, in 1/2 cup of flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Heat 3 tablespoons of oil in a skillet and saute the chicken pieces until golden brown on all sides. Transfer chicken to a baking dish, add 1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds, 1/2 cup of crushed pineapple (drained) as well as 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1/4 teaspoon of cinnamon and 1/8 teaspoon of ground cloves to the orange juice and raisins and spoon the mixture over the chicken. Bake in a 325-degree oven for 30 minutes, basting frequently. Raise heat to 400 degrees and continue cooking for 10 more minutes. (4 to 6

Sister Donella Hartman, principal of Our Lady Academy, announced senior Anne Courrege has been selected as a Mississippi Star Student for the 1994-95 school year.

Announcement of the selection of the STAR (Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition) Student was made by the Mississippi Economic Council, sponsor of the Star Student-Teacher awards program and also sponsor of the Education Celebration held recently in Jackson.

Star students are selected from accredited high schools on the basis of academic excellence. Selections are based on American College Test scores and scholastic averages.

A Star Student is selected from each participating school, and the Star Student is asked to select a Star Teacher from among classroom teachers who have made contributions to the student's success.

Darlene Green, who taught Courrege in grades 5-8 at St. Clare Elementary in Waveland, has been designated as Star Teacher.

"Mrs. Green has a wealth of knowledge," said Courrege. "She gave me an excellent background for all of my high school courses in English and Social Studies. She was very innovative in her presentation of the how's and why's of history."
Daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Bertram O. Courrege Sr. from Bay St. Louis, Courrege is president of the Student Council, an alpha honor roll student, a member of the National Honor Society and president of the SSC French Honor Society.

Courrege lectors and teaches CCD at St. Ann's Parish in Clermont Harbor and is a 1994-95 member of the Diocesan Search Team.

Pearl River will no longer perate commuter buses

After more than 40 years, the Rearl River Community College ommuter buses have rolled through the college's six-county district for the last time.

The PRCC Board of Trustees voted to do away with the commuter bus system at the end of the current school year, which was May 10. The college has been operating buses from Bay St. Louis, Prentiss, Picayne, Hattiesburg, Bassfield and Columbia five days each week since the early 1950s.

"Busing students to campus" has run its course," said Dr. Miller Hammill, dean of students and transportation director. "We have researched the issue fully for one full year and it's just not economically feasible to continue."

Hammill said 550 students were using the service in 1986 and that 10 years later, an average of 50 students are riding Tuesday and Thursday and about 80 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. During the same period the college's enrollment has doubled.

Hammill cited less student interest along with increased liability problems, the difficulty of finding qualified drivers, and increased costs as factors in his recommendation to the board.

Hammill assured the board that the school would work with any individual student who may be inconvenienced by shutting down of system.

"We will make every effort to accommodate any student who may suffer from this decision," said Hammill.

Hammill said no community or junior colleges in south Mississippi will operate a commuter system this fall. He said college dormitory space will be available for students who are inconvenienced.

Students were notified during the semester that the bus service could be discontinued.

"All bus students were talked to and informed," said Ham-mill. "We explained that help through financial aid would be

The demographics of the student body has changed significantly.

Many students are already car-pooling," said Hammill. "Many have part-time jobs and other outside responsibilities and that is a factor of the decline in riders.

Daily head counts, morning and evening, provided the information for Hammill's recommendation to the board.

"The money saved by elimination of this service will be routed in a direction to improve student services in other areas," said Hammill.

Promote self-esteem in daughters who equate beauty with being skinny

Although it seems teen-age girls have always believed one can never be too thin, the onset of spindly supermodels like Kate Moss have redefined emaciation as THE look. Just glance through People magazine's "Most Beautiful" issue and notice the majority of its pegged females are five-foot-four to five-foot-seven, weighing no more than 100 pounds.

"What this tells young women is that being beautiful is being skinny - really skinny," says Robin Street, journalism instructor at The University of Mississippi and a free-lance journalist specializing in health and fitness.

Street understands firsthand the impact a dress size has on a young woman's self-esteem. "I had a period in my life where I measured my self-worth by what I weighed on the scale. I finally conquered this one day by realizing that I had many traits much more important than my weight. This is the message I wish teen-agers could get form their parents," she

The Ole Miss instructor offers some additional messages and tips parents can use to promote self-esteem and encourage healthy lifestyles for their daughters: · Help your daughter understand that being in shape does not mean being thin. "As an aerobics instructor, I have seen some young women attend three aerobics classes a day and then go run;

this is obsessive and can be very unhealthy," she warns. "Parents should encourage moderate exercise, though, because it has been proven to increase self-esteem, · Warn daughters that extreme dieting can have lifelong negative results. When a woman's body fat gets too low her menstrual cycle may cease, and this lack of estrogen can increase the risk of osteoporosis, explains Street. And when young women cut back on calories, they generally cut back on calcium. An inadequate diet also can weaken the immune system, causing colds and sore

 Try to discourage your daughter form smoking to stay thin. Although there are no absolute ways to keep teenagers from smoking, Street suggests at least providing as much material as possible about its harmful effects. "Adolescents practice 'magical thinking,' meaning they think, 'It can't happen to me. I won't get cancer" says the Ole Miss instructor.

· Practice what you preach. "Ideally both parents should set good examples by exercising in moderation and providing healthy, balanced means," Street says. But she also stresses parents should not completely blame themselves for their daughters' eating disorders or self-steem problems. "Peeer pressure and images form magazines are a tremendous force."

Pearl River Community College's Board of Trustees approved across-the-board pay raises of 7.65 percent plus an "increment" bonus of $400 for non-degreed staff positions and $450 for professionals.

Casino Magic tennis pro, has made a huge jump in the national rankings for the USP-

TA. Lovick-Spinks has cata-pulted from #9 to #2. The jump can be attributed to her recent performance at the River Oaks

Country Club in Houston,

Margaret Lovick-Spinks, the Tennis Association. The tournament took its toll on Lovick-Spinks and it showed as she sat exhausted after a grueling three-set match in the semi-finals.

She recalls, "Placing second in this event is like a fighter regaining the world heavyweight title, to me. It was a great finish to an awesome tourney.'

Lovick-Spinks is now home and training at a paced schedule and away from the heat as much as possible.

Prior to the Houston trip, she played in and won the Mirror Lake Racket Club tournament in Mobile, Alabama. She cruised through the tourney without losing a single game.

Lovick-Spinks catapults from #9 to #2

Later on, she traveled to Rock Hill, South Carolina where she brought home two more tennis Lovick-Spinks defeated Amy Dillingham 6-0, 6-1 and Laura Powell 6-0, 6-0 in the finals of the two championships.

Dillingham is currently ranked #3 in the South in the Womens 25 Singles.

Lovick-Spinks is the mother of two and is on the Advisory Staff for Head Rackets Sports, She is endorsed by PowerBar. Recently, she signed a contract with Tone Trainer and is now an active member of their Advisory Staff.

Lovick-Spinks is the Director for Tennis at Casino Magic that will soon have tennis facilities. She is looking forward to playing at home and sharing her 'Magic' on the court with the community.

Lovick-Spinks' Tennis Magic Summer Camp begins on June 5th. For more information please call 1-800-5-MAGIC-5

Vince Moran breaks elite seven foot barrier; signs with Mississippi State

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II Vince Moran, an SSC senior, recently broke the seven foot barrier in the high jump. That: feat has only been accomplished three times before in the history of Mississippi track and field. Moran's seven foot jump is also the first time since 1988 when elite barrier. Moran cleared 7'0" on his second attempt at the height. When asked what it felt like, he replied, "It was a load off my back. The pressure was gone and it felt really good."

Paul Davis of Weston broke the Moran attempted 7'1" and came closest to clearing that height on his second attempt when his heels caught the bar.

After the event was over, Moran and SSC coach Larry Ramsey were flooded with a hoard of Division I college coaches. On May 24, Moran signed a track scholarship with Mississippi State University.

Moran was recruited by six schools to play basketball and track in luding Ole Miss, University of South Alabama, and Northeast Louisiana. He recalls why he chose Mississippi State, "Both State and Northeast Louisiana showed the most. interest in me. However, I chose State because of the opportunity to compete in the Southeast-ern Conference."

Vince started jumping in his eighth grade year at SSC. He set the junior high record at 6'6" and then Coach Larry Ramsey knew he had something special. Ramsey recalls, "With Vince jumping that height in the eighth grade, I knew he was something special. Vince has been one of my most consistent performers in all my years. He deserves this and I wish him the best One does not get to coach a seven foot high jumper everyday.'

Moran has been the District 8 Class 4A champion the last four years and is the district record holder at 6'7 1/4". He has won the South State title the last four years and has been nemed to the All-State team all four years. Moran was the state high jump champion his sophomore and senior years and state runner-up his ninth grade and eleventh grade years. Track wasn't his only love in high school, though. He played and excelled in basketball for Coach Jay Ladner.

Moran averaged 13.2 points, 7.6 rebounds, and 2.4 steals per game for the Rocks during his senior year. He was a threeyear letterman, All-District two years, the Mayor's Cup MVP for two years, and Honorable Mention All-Gulf Coast for two years. Coach Ladner reminisces, "Vince was a solid performer for us for three years. He made clutch baskets and stepped up his performance during big games and clutch times. He is an all-around student athlete and I'm glad he finally broke the seven foot

Moran has received other academic honors while at SSC. He is a consistent honor roll performer, been named Pepsi Student of the Month three times and won Pepsi Student of the Year for his grade level three times, and has been named SSC Senior of the Month.

Moran is a quiet and lowkeyed athlete who lets his actions speak for themselves and they speak rather loudly. He pondered over his career, "I started jumping in the eighth grade and enjoyed it alot. I was Gene, who also ran for Coach Ramsey. I started to do well with the high jump and knew I had something special for it."

He continued, "However, it wasn't until my sophomore year when I cleared 6'10" and won state that I knew I had a chance at breaking one of the elite barriers in the state and the country. I have been chasing this height for the last two years and flirted with it last year at South State when I cleared 6'11". It was alot of pressure of me when I cleared it this year. It was even sweeter when I broke it at the state meet. I never dreamed one inch could make a difference like that.

I have watched Vince over following my older brother, the past four years. He has developed into one of the top high jumpers in the region and country. Earlier in the year, Moran competed in the prestigious National Scholastic Indoor Championships held in Syracuse, New York. There he placed thrid with a 6'10 jump and was named a high school All-American. The seven foot jump Moran nailed at the state meet tied the state record and put him another elite category. Now, Vince Moran has graduated from St. Stanislaus and will move on to Mississippi State for bigger and better things in not only track and field, but in his life. We can all see that some of life's greatest pleasures and gifts come in small packages. For Vince Moran, the small treasure happened to be one small inch that made a difference in his life. Best of luck to one of Hancock County's native sons, Vince Moran!

May is National Barbecue Month

Dine on a Smorgasbord of Food Facts

Are you a compulsive browser? Do you thrive on facts, figures and tidbits of information? Do you like to eat? If you have answered "yes" to these questions and don't mind a little humor, there is now a book about food that somehow incorporates aspects of a farmer's almanac, recipe book and encvclopedia.

So, if you eat food, it's more than likely that you will find something of interest in "The Great Food Almanac: A Feast of Facts from A to Z" (Collins Publishers San Francisco), by Irena Chalmers. It's an all-you-can-eat buffet of buying and cooking tips, recipes, 'Did You Know?" facts, more than 1,000 illustrations and cartoons, amusing quotes, charts, graphs, old wives' tales, sources for those who seek further information on a subject, direct mail-order sources, and recommendations for books and periodicals.

If you want to know what the last snack Elvis had was, why people get hungry, what is in broccoli that prevents cancer, why diets don't work, and other useful information and wacky facts - like the sex life of lobsters and the flatulence levels of various beans then you won't be disappointed. While the eclectic format is riddled with humorous bits, there is plenty of room in this oversized book for "serious," useful information on preparing, eating, cooking, selecting, growing and understanding food.

Since May is National Barbecue Month, when the evenings are cool enough to allow you to stand around hot coals and the mosquitoes haven't finished their migration into your backyard, it would be appropriate to offer some "serious" pointers and tips around the primal art of barbecuing and

GRILLING

Beef and Hamburgers - Select tender cuts, like sirloin, T-bone, fillet or rib steaks. Marinate flank steaks before cooking to tenderize them. Trim the excess fat and cut small nicks in any fat around the edges of thin steaks to prevent them from curling. Turn steaks with flat-bladed tongs or a spatula to prevent the juices from escaping.

To see if the meat is ready to turn, make a small cut near the bone. Bright droplets of blood will appear if it is still rare. Turn it once only. The blood will rise to the surface when the second side is cooked. Press it with your thumb. The harder the meat and the greater the resistance, the more "done" it will be.

Assuming that the coals are ready, a -inch steak is rare when cooked 5 to 6 minutes on each side. In 10 to 12 minutes on each side, it will be well-done. For rare hamburgers, grill 3 to 4 minutes on each side; medium takes 5 to 6 to 10 minutes. Use a meat thermometer to ensure that hamburgers have an internal temperature of 155 F, for safety. Add salt after cooking, not during cooking. Salting during cooking will bring the juices to the surface. You want the juices to stay evenly distributed to flavor the meat. Lamb — Lamb chops, ribs and other cuts are cooked in the same way as beef. A whole butterflied leg of lamb, prepared by the butcher without a bone, will lie more or less flat on the grill, providing a feast of varying 'doneness" as the peaks and valleys cook in a range from pink to pertection. It is rare and ready when it reaches an internal temperature of 160 F to 170 F.

Pork — Spare ribs can be cut into individual pieces, or a whole rib may be impaled on a wooden skewer threaded through the meaty parts cooked meat or poultry to the plate it enabling the cook to turn the whole

Poultry — Cook poultry over medium to low heat, and turn it frequently until the juices are no longer tinged with pink. There are few things less palatable than undercooked chicken, turkey or duck. Use a meat thermometer to be sure the internal temperature at the thickest part reaches 190 F.

Fish — The best way to cook fish is in an oiled hinged basket, so that it can be turned easily. Don't prod it with a fork, or the juices will escape; don't overcook it, or it will be dry and tasteless. When the flesh is opaque, not pink or translucent, it is done. The experts tell us the best way to time the cooking is to measure the fish at its widest part. If it is I inch thick, cook it for 10 minutes; add time if it is thicker.

To tell if fish is ready to eat, slide a spatula beneath it, and lift it up an inch or two. If the fish feels heavy, leave it a little longer. If it is fully cooked, it will tend to flake away.

Vegetables — Soft and juicy vegetables are easily cooked in an oiled hinged basket, so they can be turned easily. This method is good for tomatoes, eggplant, zucchini and mushrooms. To cook fresh corn, pull back the husks, remove the silk, put the husks back in place, and tie them with butcher twine. Soak the corn in ice water for 15 minutes. Squeeze out the water, and grill the corn over medium heat, turning two or three times.

To cook potatoes, coat them in barbecue sauce, and roast them wrapped in foil for 45 minutes to an hour.

Parboil carrots, sweet potatoes and other root vegetables before finishing them on the grill, so that they will cook relatively quickly.
